168 newly-weaned pigs in a commercial piggery were fed either a typical diet incorporating GM soy and corn, or else (in the control group) an equivalent non-GM diet.

The nutritional factors that contribute most to overproduction of sebum are B vitamin deficiencies and imbalances between omega-6 and omega-3 essential fatty acids.

This essay calls attention on the international dimension of internal security.